*Preprint = a version of your article created prior to peer review

†Postprint = your article in the form accepted for publication in a Taylor & Francis journal following the process of peer review

**e-reserves = also known as electronic reserves or online reserves, these are academic materials made available to students in digital format. E-reserves are accessed through the library catalogue using an ID and password.

††Coursepacks are booklets, print or electronic, of related content prepared as supplemental materials for a course of study at a school or university. Please copy and paste the portion licensed for your reuse purposes. A coursepack license permits a non-profit, academic institution to reproduce Taylor & Francis content as part of a coursepack. Non-academic institutions requesting to reuse Taylor & Francis content in a coursepack are required to contact Taylor & Francis directly for approval. A minimum fee of $20 applies to all coursepack orders.

The screenshot shows a web browser window displaying the Taylor & Francis Online article page for "Reflective practice: origins and interpretations" by Michael Reynolds. The page layout includes a left sidebar with navigation options like "Browse journal", "View all volumes and issues", and "Current issue". The main content area features the article title, a cover image, the DOI (10.1080/14767333.2011.549321), and a "Buy now" button. Below the title is an abstract and a list of keywords: "reflection, experiential learning, critical reflection". At the bottom of the page, there are tabs for "Information", "Full text", "References", and "Reprints & permissions". A red circle highlights the "Full text" tab and the "Routledge Taylor & Francis Group" logo. The browser's address bar shows the URL: http://tandfprod.literatumonline.com/doi/abs/10.1080/14767333.2011.549321.
